The department head or licensed staff member responsible for completing the form is to research through medical records, observation or questioning in order to answer the questions. The form may require a snap shot of all residents in a certain group (tube feeders, diabetics, wanderers, etc) or a percentage of residents in the facility. The questions require a "yes, no or NA response." Each form has a threshold percentage of compliance to meet. If the threshold is not met, the staff member completing the form or several members of the team develops & implements a written Action Plan consisting of the issues found, goals, interventions, a dead line for completion of tasks and who is responsible to complete the task to quickly get back into compliance with the policy -- usually within 10 days. Most QA forms are completed quarterly, but when a threshold is not met—the form is completed again the next month to ensure that the facility maintains compliance.

The department head or licensed staff member responsible for completing the form is to research through medical records, observation or questioning in order to answer the questions. The form may require a snap shot of all residents in a certain group (tube feeders, diabetics, wanderers, etc) or a percentage of residents in the facility. The questions require a "yes, no or NA response." Each form has a threshold percentage of compliance to meet. If the threshold is not met, the staff member completing the form or several members of the team develops & implements a written Action Plan consisting of the issues found, goals, interventions, a dead line for completion of tasks and who is responsible to complete the task to quickly get back into compliance with the policy -- usually within 10 days. Most QA forms are completed quarterly, but when a threshold is not met—the form is completed again the next month to ensure that the facility maintains compliance.
