Recognition for KEIS Developmental Interventionists

This month we celebrate Developmental Interventionists (DIs). DIs have a strong early childhood special education background that supports them in addressing a wide variety of family priorities in early intervention. We want to thank our KEIS Developmental Interventionists for supporting families in promoting their child's optimal development, facilitating children's participation in family and community activities, and encouraging active family participation by embedding strategies into family routines. Thank you for helping KEIS children and families feel supported and successful!

Provider Re-enrollment Deadline is Fast Approaching

Current KEIS contracts end June 30, 2022. All contract renewal packets have been sent to agency administrators and agency owners via DocuSign. Please submit your renewal packet as soon as possible to ensure timely processing by July 1. If you have not received a renewal packet, please contact fsproviderenrollment@ky.gov.

Documentation of Early Intervention Services

We appreciate some providers documenting their early intervention sessions as soon as the session ends. Timely documentation ensures they can remember all the important details and get their notes submitted within the required time frame. Please make sure the child and family have received the entire amount of time authorized on the IFSP before documenting. Writing notes at a family's home or at a childcare center does not count as early intervention time and is not a billable service.

KEIS Provides Opportunities to Work Individually with Children and Families

Often when working in a classroom or other group setting, early interventionists don't get to experience working with an individual child and family. Working in early intervention provides opportunities to form wonderful partnerships with caregivers. This team approach to early intervention has been proven to be successful and encourages growth for all involved.

Developmental Interventionist quote from the field:

"I love watching children make progress and especially the pride parents have when they realize that they are an important part of their child's development and growth."
