

The U.S. Preventive Services Task Force says that there is not enough information for or against routine screening for prostate cancer using PSA testing or digital rectal exam. Still, in most cases, these can detect prostate cancer in its early stages. Men should be informed and consider their choices and risk before deciding whether to be tested. Your provider will discuss with you the benefits and limits of screening.

If you are:

- Older than 50
- African American
- Have a high risk of prostate cancer (have a father, brother or son with prostate cancer)

Ask your provider about prostate cancer screening!

Is screening right for you? :

- Be informed, consider your choices and risk.
- Talk it over with your healthcare provider.
