Kentucky Opioid Response Effort (KORE)

GPRA
Data Collection Overview

July 2021

What is the GPRA?

- Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA)
  - Federal mandate to evaluate outcomes of all federally-funded programs
- GPRA Client Outcome Measures
  - Interview tool developed by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA)
  - Often referred to as "the GPRA" or "GPRA data"
- Programs receiving KORE funds are required to collect GPRA data on clients who receive KORE-funded services and agree to complete the GPRA.
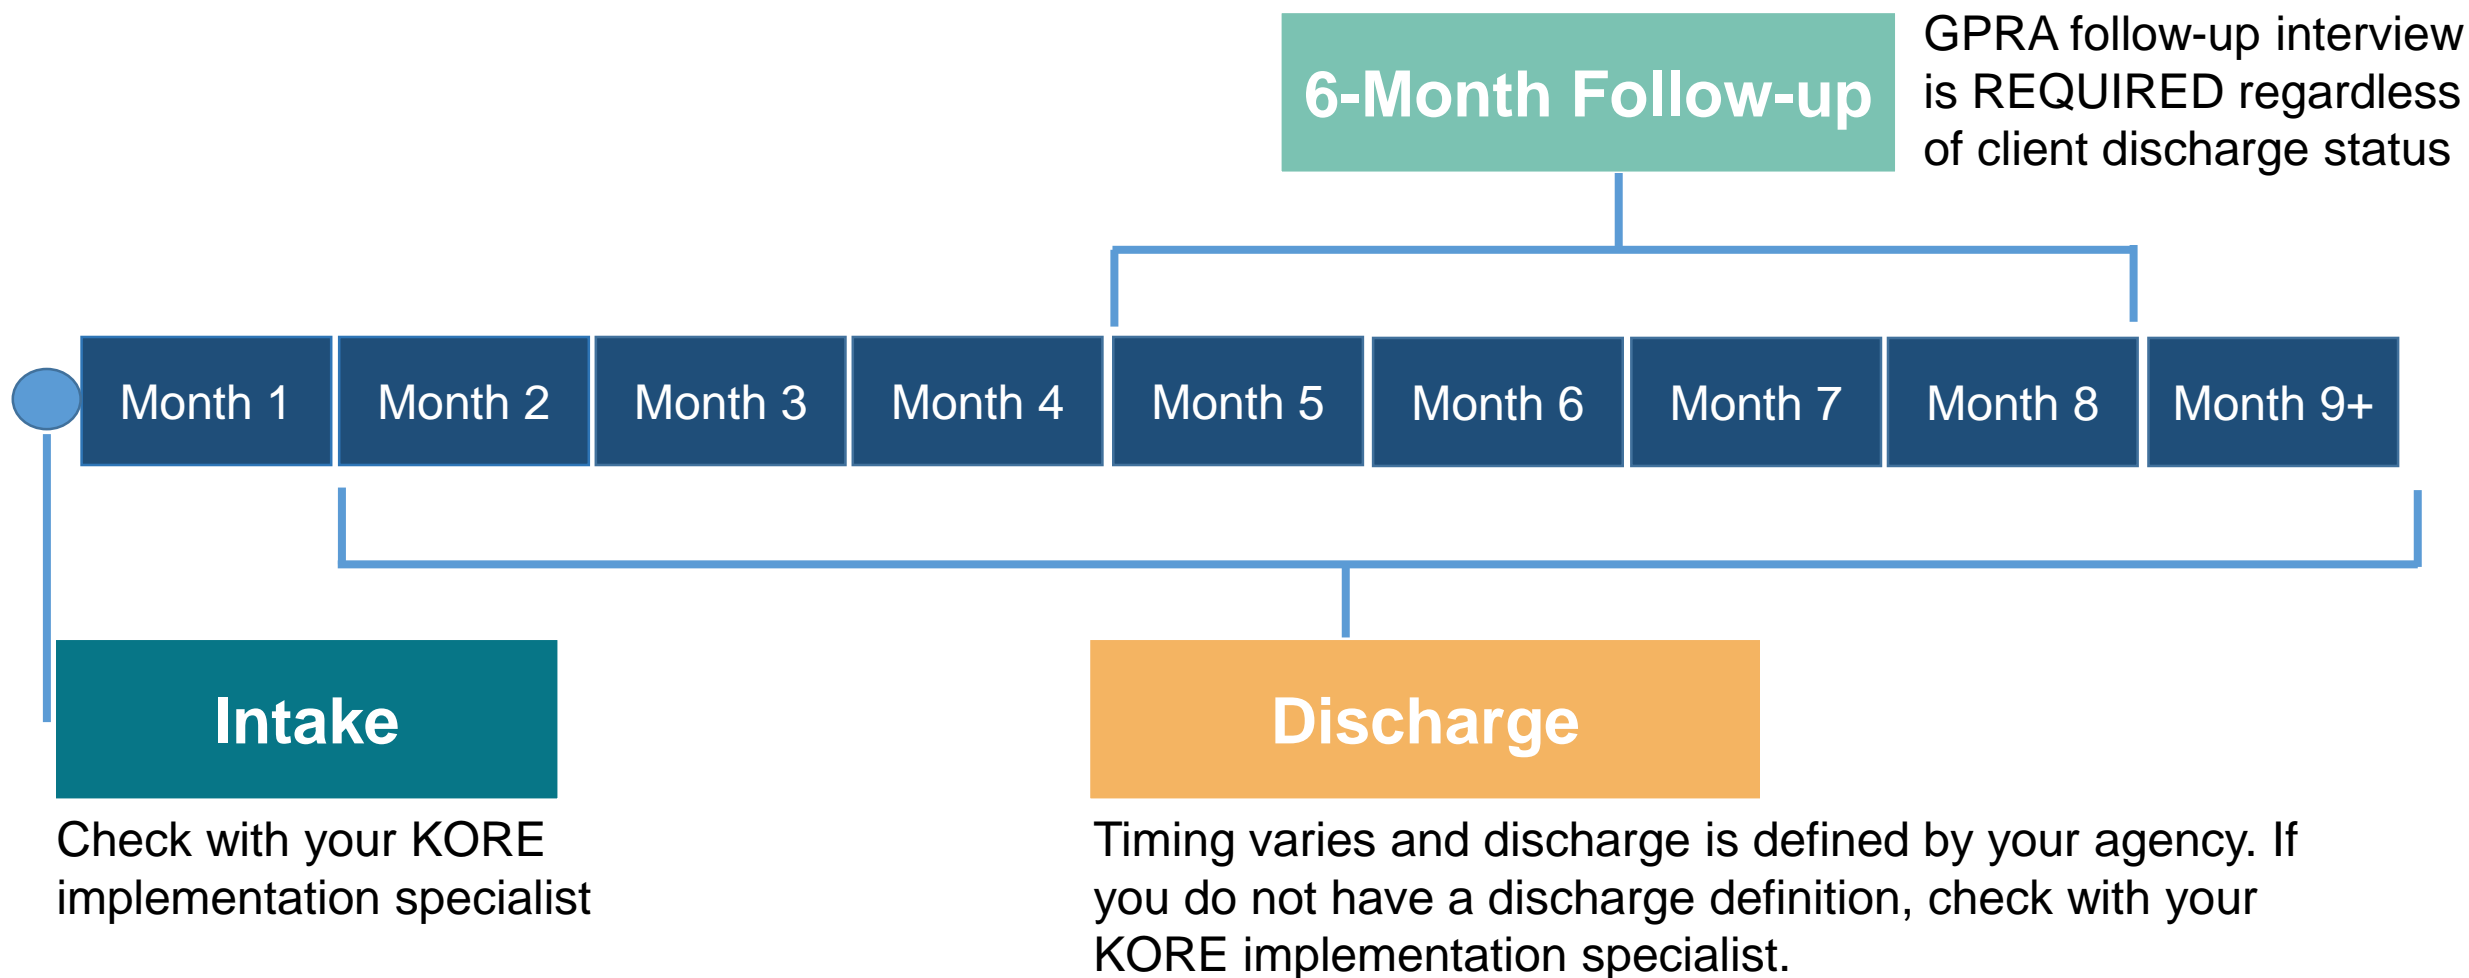

Why do we collect the GPRA?

Client-Level Outcomes	Program-Level Outcomes	State & Federal Outcomes
• Substance use • Physical and mental health • Social connectedness • Education/employment status • Criminal justice status • Living conditions	• Treatment engagement • Treatment completion • Treatment retention and discharge • Active participation in recovery services	• Overdose rates • Criminal justice measures • Population-level substance use • Grant accountability
The outcomes make the case to Congress that the money awarded to Kentucky is being spent effectively

What is the expected follow-up rate?

- The target GPRA follow-up rate is 80%

  - ≥80% of individuals completing an intake interview should also complete a 6-month follow-up interview

- SAMHSA pays close attention to follow-up rates, which can affect future funding

- Participants who complete their 6-month follow-up interview can be eligible to receive a $30 gift card

  - Your KORE implementation specialist will provide more information on follow-ups and gift cards

Where is the GPRA collected?

- Web Infrastructure for Treatment Services (WITS)
  - Secure, web-based GPRA data collection platform
  - Improved data quality
  - Users will need a WITS account
  - Additional WITS information/training will be provided separately

Who should collect the GPRA?

- The GPRA should be collected by trained program staff as an interview with the client

- Questions should be asked as written

- Do no change the wording of GPRA questions

- A question-by-question guide is available to explain each question and provide additional probes and definitions that do not appear in WITS
